

Map to the Future

Insight into the average Penn student's life

The University of Pennsylvania advocates itself as a liberal arts institution in which students cultivate their interests and pursue their dreams. We strive in the present to create the best future but of course there is no way to know exactly what will happen. But is there some semblance of a road map to be made out of Penn students' track record? The information presented above is a mapping of one's current self to one's future self as a Penn student based on past data collected by the UPenn Career Services.

Created by Divya Prabhakar

